Alcestis - Greek Tragedy

In the play, Alcestis requests that Admetus does not marry again. He agrees and also promises to lead a life of chill-ality, refraining from any merrymaking that was once an integral part to their household.

Heracles, Admetus's friend comes over and instead of being a bummer, Admetus instructs the servants to carry on as if Alcestis is not dead.

Heracles is chided by the servants for the frivolity, and goes to get Alcestis back from Death cuz he feels like a tool.

Alcestis returns and cannot speak for 3 days until she is purified.

What did you think about Alicia being the killer? Did you think she was the killer all along or did you think she was framed?

What do you think of the painting and what is your interpretation(s)?

Who do you think is the least reliable narrator? The most?

Did you see the ending coming?

What do you think Theo did? The last line is ambiguous.
